

WINNERS IN WESTERLY CONTEST.

Prizes in High School Speaking Awarded Miss Randall and Miss Papolia—Westerly Development Company Organized—Death of Mrs. Mary Allen—Alexis Martel Appeals from Jail Sentence—John R. Dunham Dies at Stonington.

The assembly hall of the Westerly high school, attractively decorated by the class of 1910, and filled with pupils and friends of the school, was the scene of the contest in the girls' annual prize speaking contest, which took place Thursday evening, the order of events being as follows:

Piano solo, Valde Caprice, Hoffman, by Miss Julia Callahan; prayer, by Rev. John G. Dutton; Anchored, Watson, by High School chorus of seventy-five voices; Saunders, McGlashan's Contrabasso, Kennedy, by Miss Jessie M. Standish; Glinera, Anon., by Miss Marie J. Papolia; The Schoolmates' Guest, Carlton, by Miss Theresa E. Dougherty; tenor solo, The Fairy of Shadowtown, DeKoven, by Howard S. Pember; Mary Elizabeth, Ward, by Miss Mollie Randall; Flaming the Cannon Ball, Pelke, by Miss Anna B. Abert; The Bridal Chorus, Cowen, by high school chorus, Miss Callahan, accompanist.

There were two prizes, $15 and $10. The first was awarded Miss Mollie Randall and the second went to Miss Marie J. Papolia.

The judges were Miss Fanny T. Pennington, Westerly, formerly teacher at the Hornellville, N. Y., high school; William H. Holmes, Jr., superintendent of Westerly schools, and Principal C. P. Dutton, the Westerly school, North Stonington.

Clyde Owens, formerly of Westerly, and one of the best players on the Capitol team of the Providence polo league, is pictured and praised in the newspapers. In the opinion of many the Capitols is the fastest five ever developed in the state among the amateurs. "Owens, the big rush, is good enough to go out and with a little coaching make a good representative in the fastest game in the world." A number from Westerly will go to Providence, Monday, to witness the game to decide the league championship between the Capitols and Nolana.

Dr. Thomas E. Robinson of Westerly, president of the Rhode Island Veterinary Medical society, and many of the members, attended a public hearing, Thursday, by the house committee on special legislation on an act creating a state board of veterinarians and regulating the practice of veterinary medicine, surgery and dentistry. It was set forth that already many states had passed such laws and that it was proper that the profession should be protected and incompetent persons prevented from practicing in the state. No one should be eligible to membership on the board unless having been in active practice at least five years. Dr. Robinson said Rhode Island was

TUBERCULOSIS CATTLE

SHIPPED INTO CONNECTICUT.
Statement Made at Hearing Before Public Health and Safety Committee.

Hartford, Conn., March 25.—Carloads of cattle afflicted with tuberculosis have been shipped into this state, killed and sold for food, according to statements made at the hearing this afternoon before the committee on public health and safety at the capitol by Representative Knight of Salisbury.

He was speaking in favor of the bill providing for an inspection of all cattle, sheep, swine, goats and slaughterhouses, and a post mortem examination of all carcasses of animals to be used as food under the supervision of the dairy commissioner, under the stipulation of the act, and providing a penalty for violations thereof. Dr. Knight asserted that tuberculosis cattle from all over New England was shipped into the state from New York and Massachusetts. He knew of one man who had bought a lot of such cattle just to kill and sell in Connecticut.

Health officer Wright of New Haven also favored the measure, as did Representative Plisk of Newington and others. Cattle Dairy Commissioner Ayer said that there was no law to prevent bringing into this state of diseased cattle, and advocated some measure which would require the cattle brought into the state to pass a tuberculosis test. The disease, he said, was an insidious one, and often cattle which looked sleek and fat were affected with it. He would have all cattle inspected at slaughter.

Fred Zebb of Granby, who formerly had been a butcher, favored the idea of inspection, and presented a bill for the consideration of the committee which would provide for the appointment of not more than five deputy inspectors, who should have authority to act immediately in any case of violation they found, and who should be continually "on the road," as he put it. Conditions he knew of, he said, called for such inspection.

R. Willard of Madison opposed the bill, because he believed certain features would work to the detriment of the smaller concerns in the business. He did not believe that cattle were the only means through which tuberculosis was spread.

Attorney J. B. Tuttle of New Haven, representing the independent butchers, believed that it was not possible to carry out the work of inspection under the provisions of the proposed measure, and advocated inspection by local and county health officers. He opposed the whole bill on the ground that it would work injury to the small dealers.

George F. Burgess of New Haven, representing a large packing company, said he believed heartily in inspection, but thought the bill under consideration crude, and pointed out that it made no provision for federal supervision. He also objected to the charge of ten cents per animal killed which the bill would impose.

ENTRANCE AND EXIT FROM ROOMS WHERE LIQUOR IS SOLD.

Bill Now Pending Before Excise Committee Characterized as "A Fool Bill"—Hearing at Hartford.

Hartford, Conn., March 25.—Characterizing it as "a fool bill" and one which would bring about an invalid use of the police power by the state, Frederick T. Orr, of the Klein of Bridgeport argued against the bill pending before the committee on excise at the capitol this afternoon, which provides that all customers every entrance to and exit from rooms where liquors are sold shall upon upon and be adjacent to a public street, except in cases of reputable hotels, drug stores and wine and beer dealers.

Beginning his argument, he said that the provisions of the bill were the most drastic that he had ever heard of, and that the committee should, if it had the power, refer it to the building commission, and if no such commission existed one should be created, because the bill would require every owner of places where liquors are sold to remodel his building. He was asked by a member of the committee to read the bill, which he did, it thereby developing that the measure did not provide that all entrances or exits be closed, but that those for customers' use open upon a public street. He took up the question of what constitutes a customer, and said that it would be very difficult to prove whether a man had been a customer or had entered the place for some other purpose. He was asked by someone in the room whether such a measure, if passed, would be constitutional, and he replied that while it might be constitutional, it would be an invalid exercise of the public power by the state, a distinction he said which the lawyer on the committee would recognize.

Frederick T. Orr opposed the measure. H. H. Spooner, Rev. G. D. Ebert of South Norwalk and Rev. C. S. MacFarland of the same city appeared for the measure.

Other measures providing for challenges, box tenders and counters in votes on license and no-license and providing for a vote on the license question on petition of not less than 10 per cent. of the legal voters of a town, were discussed before the committee. The hearing was continued to a later date.

The Ideal Woman.

Dr. Lyman Abbott defines in seven clauses the ideal woman. As the terms may be condensed, they call for a woman who is the slave not of fashion nor the dressmaker, who is not a slave to work will spoil her hands, who wears shoes in which she can walk, thereby getting her color from exercise instead of the rouge box; who develops her love of beauty in her home, who is "industrious, sympathetic, energetic, enthusiastic, motherly and a true friend."

The doctor's specifications demand a great deal, but nothing which should be regarded as supernatural. They contain no references to ability in the art of rhythmic breathing, nor to a yearning for the ballot. Indeed, the required qualities are so homely that they might be the possessions of a woman who had never been taught at an Armenian school, had never considered whether or not she ought to smoke in public, and had never courted the application of the adjective "advanced."—New York World.
